Teaching and working methods	Teaching and working methods Students are themselves responsible for securing an internship host and for the practical implementation of the internship, including ensuring that both their tasks for the internship host and their obligations to the University are fulfilled. The internship must be approved by the Study Board before it is commenced. It is expected that the semester's work will be distributed as 3/4 for the internship host and 1/4 for the University (equivalent to approximately 540-600 hours for the internship and about 200 hours of university work). The intern's main activities must be described, and must lie within the fields of both Global Studies and Politics. The student has obligations towards both subjects. Overall, Global Studies receives an internship project, and Politics receives a number of tasks. Obligations towards Global Studies: Internship project The problem statement of the internship project must relate to theoretical or empirical issues drawn from the field of Global Studies, and which the internship at the host organisation (or its activities) provides an opportunity to illuminate, but may otherwise be freely chosen by the student. Students are encouraged to focus on issues in which aspects of Politics can be brought into play. See also the description of the internship project under 'Form of examination'. Obligations towards Social Science: Politics receives a concluding written assignment, consisting of three reflection assignments. The internship project must contain the following: <ul style="list-style-type: none"><li>• Reflections on (a) the use of social scientific methods at the internship venue, and (b) a discussion of either how the internship venue could make more optimal use of various</li></ul> methodological approaches, or an example of how the internship venue could organise an assignment using various social scientific methods, together with their strengths and weaknesses in the light of the special interests of the internship venue.

- Reflections on theories within Social Science that are particularly relevant to the internship venue and/or the field of activity of the internship venue. The choice of theories must be argued, with reference to scientific articles/texts. The scope of the referenced literature must be at least 300 pages.
- Memorandum for internship venue. The subject of the memorandum may be freely chosen by the student, but must be relevant to the internship venue and lie within the subject field of Social Science. The memorandum might for example consist of a policy brief, a reasoned recommendation for future areas of action, or a reasoned proposal for organisational change.
