ACADEMIC CONTENT

Overall objective
-------------------	--

Detailed description of content	Kursets formål er at give de studerende grundlæggende indsigt og kompetence i at identificere elementer, vilkår og scenarier der indbefatter inklusion og eksklusion i ovennævnte samfundssfærer o.l. De studerende har mulighed for at tage kontakt med relevante eksterne aktører, der arbejder med integration, medborgerskab, socialt udsatte, social ansvarlighed, sproglig og kulturel diversitet, diskrimination, ligestilling mv. Et centralt omdrejningspunkt i kurset er spørgsmålet om magt og sociale hierarkiseringer, og hvorledes de konkret udmøntes i ovennævnte sfærer. Description for the Fall 2022: (Anti-)Racism in Theory and Practice What do the apartheid system in South Africa, the Holocaust, Palestine, and the so-called refugee problem in Denmark have in common? All are examples of institutionalized racism and its serious consequences. At the same time, these examples point to racism as a globalized problem that takes different shapes and affects us subjectively, politically, socially and economically both at local levels as well as across national borders. Understanding how racism shapes the world is therefore essential to analyze, discuss and critically assess a broad spectrum of issues across disciplines in the humanities and social sciences and most importantly to effectively address and dismantle it. The course provides students with theoretical, methodological and practical tools to conceptualize and analyze racism and to understand the interplay between theory and practice in this regard. As such, the course involves academic and activist perspectives and analyses. This gives the students insight into a rich and varied field that is socially relevant and contributes with important input to understanding current problems in Denmark and the world - and its alternatives.
Course material and Reading list	Course programme and readings will be available at Moodle.
Overall plan and expected work effort	Workload The entire workload of a 5 ECTS course is 135 hours. In order to avoid a heavy workload of 49 hours in each of the two weeks of the course, we will assign readings and videos in moodle that you should initiate reading and watching early in the semester. Learning activities The course largely works as a study circle, where teaching and learning to a very large degree is based on student presentations and dialogue between and among teacher and students. Exercises and peer feedback may also be applied. The chosen working methods will be announced by the lecturer at the start of the course.
Format
Evaluation and feedback	Evaluation and feedback will be an integrated part of the course. A final course evaluation may take place by the end of the course.
Programme	Course programme and readings will be available at Moodle.
