ACADEMIC CONTENT

Overall objective	This course addresses how processes of globalisation and mobility are transforming cities and urban life, and how they are creating new political and cultural conditions and challenges for planning. Questions include: how are diverse cities organized, governed and planned? What are 'good cities', and how might they be created with room for diversity and cultural coexistence? What is the potential for intervening in urban spaces and processes through planning as well as forms of tactical urbanism, performance and art practice? These questions are considered through current research-based cases, and by bringing together theoretical and analytical knowledge and understanding of cultural and political processes with specific practices and interventions on the ground. Emphasis is put on students developing ways of investigate and communicate their analyses using different means.
Detailed description of content	The course introduction explores the key themes of cities, culture and politics in the current context of globalisation and neoliberalism, which have profoundly reshaped urban experiences and paths of development. Subsequent lectures, discussions, walking tours and site visits address aspects of these themes and especially with reference to Copenhagen and to its areas of Nørrebro and Nordvest. Training is also given in consultancy work and the forms this takes, and students are invited to respond to course questions through developing in groups or individually a consultancy report or other approved product - for example, a video, podcast or photo essay - relating to a defined urban problem or issue.
Course material and Reading list	Readings for each session are provided on Moodle before the start of the course. Texts that are useful contexts for the course as a whole are: Rossi, Ugo and Vanolo, Alberto 2011, Urban Political Geographies: A Global Perspective. London, Sage. Schmidt, Garbi 2016, Space, politics and past–present diversities in a Copenhagen neighbourhood. Identities, 23.1, 51-65.

Teaching and learning activities

There are eight course sessions. These combine lectures, class discussions and field trips or other excursions. Further details are uploaded to Moodle.

Format The course is mainly taught at RUC. It may also include field trips and excursions.

Evaluation and feedback Evaluation is via an anonymous online survey distributed to all participants. The course will also be discussed with participants in the final session and reviewed at the NUPS Education Committee with input from student representatives.

Programme

ASSESSMENT

By the end of this course, students should be able to:

- Overall learning outcomes
- Understand the significance of aspects of globalisation, urban politics, cultural diversity and everyday life for urban planning
 - Understand and critically reflect on practices of intercultural planning as well as forms of urban intervention and performance in relation to urban development
 - Analyse forms and consequences of policy, planning and spatial practices in relation to diverse and power-laden geographies of cities and urban life
 - Identify and engage with significant urban questions, issues and contexts that relate to the course themes, and to communicate analysis effectively using appropriate textual and visual means.

Portfolio written in a group or individually

Form of examination Permitted group size: 2-6 students. Examples of written products are exercise responses, talking points for presentations, written feedback, reflections, written assignments. The preparation of the products may be subject to time limits. The content of the portfolio must be individualised.

The character limits of the portfolio are :

For 1 student: maximum 12,000 characters, including spaces.

For 2 students: maximum 16,800 characters, including spaces.

For 3 students: maximum 19,200 characters, including spaces.

For 4 students: maximum 24,000 characters, including spaces.

For 5 students: maximum 28,800 characters, including spaces.

For 6 students: maximum 30,000 characters, including spaces.

The character limits include the cover, table of contents, bibliography, figures and other illustrations, but exclude any appendices.

The portfolio's specific products and the (if relevant) recommended size (character limits) for the individual products are made public on study.ruc.dk before the course begins.

The entire portfolio must be handed in at the same time (uploaded to eksamen.ruc.dk). Handing in the portfolio or parts of the portfolio to the supervisor for feedback, cannot replace the upload to eksamen.ruc.dk. The submission deadline will be announced on study.ruc.dk before the course begins.

Assessment: 7-point grading scale

Form of Re-examination

Samme som ordinær eksamen / same form as ordinary exam

Type of examination in special cases

Examination and assessment criteria

The portfolio exam consists of a choice of EITHER a consultancy report (written individually or in a group) with an individual academic reflection paper; OR an alternative product in the form of a video, podcast or photo-essay (produced individually or in a group) with an individual academic reflection paper. The format, tasks and locations of the consultancy report and alternative products will be introduced at the start of the course and explained further on Moodle.

The total word length of all the submitted written materials must be within the lengths specified here and on Moodle. Advice on the assignments and appropriate lengths of each portfolio component will be given on Moodle and during course sessions.

Assessment criteria – emphasis will be put on the ability to:

- Show practical and theoretical understanding of the significance of aspects of globalisation, urban politics, cultural diversity and everyday life for urban planning
- Reflect critically on practices of intercultural planning and related forms of urban intervention, performance and development
- Identify and analyse urban planning questions and issues that relate to course themes, and to communicate that analysis and its implications effectively through appropriate approved forms.
